

SUMAA NEWSLETTER

Hi everyone,

As you probably know, Thailand is called the 'Land of Smiles' because of Thais' habit of smiling to show a range of emotions. We do this both with friends and strangers, and we smile to achieve ends that are as varied as greeting someone, apologizing, and saying thank you.

We're sure that you've all had plenty of opportunities to meet and talk to people from Thailand (at the very least, you've spoken to your teacher at Sumaa, right!) So what do you think of Thais? Have you ever got on public transport and thought that the driver couldn't be trusted? Or have you met a street seller who was really kind? Maybe someone who offered you a special price, swapped something for you, or gave you something extra. If you have, why don't you tell us about it?

In this month's newsletter, we plan to help you get better at describing yourself and other people by telling you how to talk about personal characteristics.

sàp·sét (ศัพท์SET)
sà·sǒm·sàp (สะสมศัพท์)

We've got a lot of different ways of talking about different personality types, but don't worry because on this episode of sàp·sét, we're going to go through a bunch of examples that you'll then be able to go off and use.

And on this month's episode of sà·sǒm·sàp, we're going to talk about the differences between ?๖๓-?๖๖, ?๖๓-?๖๗, and ?๖๓-?๖๘.
Let's get started!
