

SUMAA NEWSLETTER

Hi everyone! It's June already, and in Thailand, that means that we've officially entered the rainy season so many of us are going to start having more problems in our normal day-to-day lives, such as having to deal with flooding, or traffic jams being even worse than normal, and that then delaying getting to work or to appointments. This is especially a problem for people in Bangkok, and we all really hope that following last month's election, the new governor has a team that can make inroads into these problems.

TODAY WE'VE GOT SOME EASY THAI STRUCTURES TO USE TO TALK ABOUT THE RAIN. HAVE A GO USING THESE!

It's not raining yet.

fǒn yaj mây tòk

ฝนยังไม่ตก

It's going to rain.

fǒn kamlaj ca tòk

ฝนกำลังจะตก

It rained.

fǒn tòk léæw

ฝนตกแล้ว

SÀ-SŎM-SÀP (สะสมศัพท์)

In the latest episode of sà-sŏm-sàp, we talk about rain and the meaning of the Thai idiom 'fáa-lǎj-fǒn'. You can watch this at...

SÀP-SÉT (ศัพท์SET)

In sàp-sét, we'll introduce you to the words you need to talk about the seasons and to describe the weather. You can watch the latest episode at...

